FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 1, 1864.

News by the Steamer.

The late hour at which the steamer Pacific arrived, and the crowded state of our columns compels us to postpone intelligence additional to that received by telegraph, until to-morrow. We trust our readers will pardon us, but we cannot make steam set type.

The State Convention.

The proceedings of yesterday appear under our telegraph head. The present judges, Boise, Stratton and Wilson, are nominated for re-election. An excellent list of delegates to the National Convention was selected, and we believe it is expected that all of them will personally perform their duties. Presidential electors were nominated, though it seems to us that this action was premature, and possibly may be regretted: we hope not, and shall not borrow trouble, till it comes. In the absence of Mr. Pittock, who was nominated for State Printer, we may be permitted, in his behalf, to express his profound gratitude to the representatives of the Union party, who thus manifested their confidence in his fidelity. So far as he is concerned, we are sure that it is fully deserved by earnest and untiring devotion to the interests of the State and the cause of patriotism, and if the people shall ratify the nomination by his election, they may be sure that he will use his utmost ability to prove himself a faithful public servant.

We will also add that if Mr. Craig, his competitor, had received the nomination, there is no man for whose election, we would have labored more heartily and industriously. We have known him for many years, and believe him to be deserving of high esteem as an honest and true man. If at any time, seeming unkindness towards us, has come from his press, we know it was the work of his fingers guided by others, and not of his head or heart. We have no feeling of triumph over him, but are only proud that our efforts are recognized by our Union friends, and trust that he and we may long continue to labor harmoniously in a common cause, for the safety of our country and the prosperity of our State.

Our Public Finances.

The strongest and most bitter efforts on the part of disloyal Democrats, to defeat the cause of the Union and to overthrow the Constitutional Government at Washington, have been made by denouncing the National Finances. This has been done in every possible form and has come from every imaginable direction. We have had from the beginning of the war and still have, assaults upon the Secretary of the Treasury, prophesies of national bankruptcy and ruin, threats of repudiation, threats at the national credit—in short all things which ingenious malice can devise, tending to palsy the Government.

When we bear in mind that the problem of raising money necessary to carry on a gigantic war, even before any large amount could be obtained by taxation or otherwise, was the most intricate and difficult of all which the Administration was required to solve, the effect of such a system of assaults can be easily perceived: and when to this was added the fact of honest and radical difference of opinion as to the proper financial policy of the Government, we can appreciate the severe task of carrying successfully the public finances through the fearful and fiery trial. Even if there has not been perfect success, there is enough to inspire confidence and satisfaction. The recent immense loan of five hundred millions dollars was taken cheerfully in spite of all derision and contempt. The world never saw a parallel to the popular zeal manifested in its absorption. It was taken by the people everywhere—it went into every village in the land, until the last dollar was gone. Its wide distribution was a welcome proof that the heart of the nation had confidence, and was determined not to be alarmed by the sneers or the ponderous assaults of disloyal sympathizers with the rebellion, who hoped that the Government might break down in this most vital measure. It shows, by contrast with the experiment of the rebel managers to effect a similar result for themselves, how wise has been the superintendence of our financial matters, and its success cannot fail to challenge the world's admiration and approval. The money kings of Europe to-day are more astonished at the vast resources which the Union has so easily secured and at the sagacious skill, which has accomplished the wonderful result, than at anything which ever happened in the financial world.

Let treasonable Democrats then rail on: their howls of alarm and pretended anxiety will do no harm. The hearts of good and patriotic men will not fail them for fear, nor be disturbed, because angry partizans, who hope and work and vote and lie for the sake of injuring and destroying the Government, continue to depreciate its financial credit. The courage of loyalty will be strengthened as the success of the Administration is made more and more apparent in all its operations. If victories are gained over the rebellion, and the progress of the army with daily increasing energy, hastens the return of peace, there will be no anxiety or lack of confidence as to questions of finance. The public credit will be cordially sustained by a willing people, and the national loan, contracted for the salvation of the republic, will be cherished and upheld as the triumphant means of securing the undying integrity of our free institutions.

No Mint for Oregon.—W. S. Ladd, Esq., of this city informs us that he yesterday received a dispatch from his correspondents in New York, dated March 29th, stating that the project of the establishment was defeated. In which House of Congress, or for what cause, this unfortunate result has happened, is not stated. We are left to suppose that a bill which met the approval of the standing committee to whom it was referred, and of the Secretary of the Treasury, could have been defeated only from opposition or want of interest on the part of the local representation. We feel sure that if our delegation in Congress had supported the measure with energy,—sustained as it was by the action of the committee and of the Department, it could not have failed. We do anxiously hope that the time will sometime come when neither indolence, inefficiency nor malice will deprive the State of vital privileges which Congress might easily be induced to bestow.

Becoming utterly Insolvent.—John Bull is losing his good temper towards his rebel customers: They don't pay him promptly what they promised, and so very naturally he threatens to stop trading with them. A letter from New Orleans states that $15,000,000 of Confederate money that run the blockade from some eastern port to Havana, and safely reached Mexico on its way to the Texas rebels, have been seized by an English House at Matamoras, for the failure of an agent of the Rebel Government to meet his contract in cotton, and a large amount of cotton belonging to that Government was also seized for the same reason. This "arbitrary" proceeding forcibly illustrates the waning and bankrupt fortunes of the rebels. It is a proceeding to which no private business house would dare resort, unless against some Government so utterly bankrupt and worthless in means and character, that it was entirely safe to treat with insult and contempt.

Meritorious Charity.—Mr. Chas. Lishan, an old resident of Clark county, while in attendance at Court in Vancouver last week as a juror, lost his dwelling, barn and all their contents of considerable value by fire. Even the clothing of his family was not saved. He is now left utterly destitute, and is compelled to appeal to the charity of the humane, to enable him to get something to make a new start in life. His case is a very hard one, for all the work of many laborious years must be done over again; we commend his misfortunes to the consideration of the charitable, upon whom he may call.

Forced to Admit the Truth.—The New York Herald, always notorious for its unqualified subserviency to the slave power, recently had an editorial, advocating the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution, abolishing slavery throughout the United States. It says "the institution so long as it exists can never hereafter be anything except a source of mischief to all concerned. Its usefulness to the South is destroyed; its evils as a fountain of bitter waters are all that is left of it."

This is all very true, though it is one of the strange things even of these eventful times that the Herald should declare itself in favor of universal freedom, constitutional emancipation and practical abolition. It shows how powerful and irresistible is the current of popular sentiment throughout the Nation on this question. In closing this remarkable article, the Herald uses this vigorous paragraph:

Let Congress then apply the remedy suggested, and before the end of the year this vexing and perplexing question of slavery may be settled constitutionally, decisively and forever. And this is the only way to settle it. Nor can there be a shadow of doubt that the man who puts this ball in motion in Congress will be the commanding spirit of the Union restored.

Who can help wondering at the folly and blindness of the professed Union man, in Congress or out of it, who opposes now the immediate and final settlement of this overwhelming question in a constitutional manner! He is madly fighting against freedom, against humanity, against God. He is digging a grave for himself so deep that from it, no sound can ever awake him to glory or honor again.

Confusion of Names.—The name of Bannock City, (Boise County,) Idaho, has been changed to Idaho City. There being still one Bannack City in that Territory, persons having directions to mark should be careful and not start their goods for the Beaver Head mines, unless they intend them to go there. The "great plains" amount to nothing, any longer, and such mistakes are liable to occur any time.

The Steamer Rescue.—Captain Thayer has made two trips to the Cascades this week, with the steamer Rescue, carrying full loads of stock on both occasions. He leaves for the Cowlitz river this morning.

A Sell.—The most genuine sell likely to be perpetrated to-day, is that disposing of the furniture, etc., of the California Hotel at auction. The articles will be sold by A. B. Richardson, at his Auction Rooms.

Treasure.—The treasure brought by Mr. West last evening, from the Dalles, amounted to about $4,000.

Why did n't the last dove return to the ark? Because she had sufficient ground for remaining.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to March 28th.

WASHINGTON, March 28.

Lieut. Gen. Grant arrived from the Front yesterday, and was in consultation with the President, Stanton and Halleck last night. He returned to Front to-day, and has established his headquarters at Culpepper.

NEW YORK, 28.—Bank statement shows the following: Decrease deposites 1,352,000.

NEW YORK, 29.—The Post's special says an attempt will soon be made in Congress to reduce the volume of currency by taxing the circulation of State banks.

A Time's letter says rebel Gen. Stuart recently made an extensive attempt for the destruction of the Orange and Alexandria railroad, but his plans were frustrated by thoughtfulness of our cavalry under Pleasonton.

Col. Bryan succeeded, while watching the movements of the rebels, in capturing over 40 of the enemy.

He destroyed four rebel tannories, full of hides, four grist mills, saw mill, large numbers of rafts and boats intended to be used by Stuart in crossing the river.

A rebel scout, captured at Ely's ford, he was dressed in Federal uniform. On being tried by drum-head court martial, he started that Lee had given orders to strip all the bodies of Union soldiers, and that the only clothing which the rebels had had for some time was obtained in this way.

The Tribune's special says it is understood that the committee of Ways and Means will recommend a tax of one dollar on spirits, to take effect in May, instead of July, and will also recommend a heavy tax on tobacco.

It is the opinion in many circles, that taxes on these articles will yield fully one-half of all revenue.

Boston, 27.—A Madrid letter of Feb'y 28, says the Florida sailed from Tunchal, Feb'y 20th.

The St. Louis was in port, but being a sailing vessel she could do nothing.

NEW YORK, 28.—Newbern advices of the 25th, say two steamers with 700 bales of cotton ran the blockade on the night of the 15th.

Judge Pierson of North Carolina, in a habeas corpus case recently before him, decided that the recent act of the rebel Congress to conscript persons who have furnished substitutes for the war was unconstitutional.

NEW YORK, 27.—Ten regiments of Burnside's command are now at Annapolis.

Mobile papers of the 18th, say there was hot firing on Fort Powell yesterday. The enemies fleet is forty-two miles from the fort.

MEMPHIS, 25.—The steamer Des Arc, lying at Duval's Bluff, was burned to the waters edge on the 22d. Her cargo was valued at 20,000 dollars; part of her cotton will be saved.

At Fort Smith, Ark., a dispatch announces that the army on the frontier is in motion. It is supposed their destination is northern Texas.

CAIRO, 27.—Dispatches say that 50 rebels were killed at Paducah, and eleven Federal, including seven negroes, killed in the fort, by rebel sharpshooters. The assaulting force is said not to be more than 1000 without artillery. Our forces had just been paid one years' service at Union city, and lost by the surrender, in money to soldiers, about 60,000 dollars.

Rebels left Paducah at 3 o'clock, Saturday 26th, going in the direction of Columbus.

Rebel dispatches say that the Federal loss was 25 killed, 30 wounded; rebel loss, 300 killed, 1000 wounded, Rebel Gen. A. P. Thompson killed.

CHATTANOOGA, 27.—A large batch of Federal deserters were brought in from the north this morning.

Rebel deserters continue to come in.

Information has been received that rebel Gen. Martin's division of cavalry has arrived at Carlysleville, Ga., from East Tennessee, and are recruiting.

Wheeler has been sent from Cassville to Dayton. Rebels claim to have 50,000 men at Dalton and vicinity. They say Longstreet has gone to Kentucky with 26,000 men.

An order has been published by Johnston to restrict all officers, even Maj-Generals, to one horse; owing to scarcity of forage.

All heavy artillery is being removed from Kingston to Altoona.

ST. LOUIS, 27.—Our loss at the capture of fort De Russa, 7 killed; 42 wounded. Rebel loss, 15 killed and 40 wounded. De Russy is seventy miles from the mouth of the Red River, and seventy from Alexandria.

CHICAGO, 28.—Cairo specials say Forrest is near Mayfield, his wounded is in town, which is filled with them.

CHICAGO, March 29.—A correspondent gives an account of the attack on Paducah: A detachment under Faulkner numbering 1,200, attacked and captured Union City, Tennessee; afterwards rejoined the principal command, numbering in all 6,500, and marched on Paducah, reaching there at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the 25th. As the rebels advanced down town near the depot, the Union troops retreated to the Fort. The garrison consisted of three companies, 122d Illinois, a few Kentucky cavalry just organized, about 300 soldiers all told, and about 600 men under Col. Picks. The rebels sent a flag demanding the surrender of the Fort, which was refused. The rebel sharpshooters then occupied the houses nearest the Fort and commenced to pick off our men and to drive them out. A fire was opened on the buildings by the guns of the Fort and two gunboats in the river. Owing to the situation little time was given for the removal of the women and children, and in the fight that followed several were killed and wounded. Numbers of them were sent across the river, but the ferry boat sent for another load was fired on by the rebels and could not land. The rebels made a gallant charge at the Fort, but were repulsed with a great slaughter. They subsequently sent two summonses to surrender, both of which were refused. The rebels then scattered themselves through town and plundered, looted and destroyed other property. The quarter-master's buildings and a great quantity of commissary stores were destroyed. Nine buildings, including the railroad depot and a steamboat on stocks were burned. The houses nearest the Fort that were occupied by the rebel sharpshooters, were all destroyed by our guns. The negro regiment is reported to have behaved admirably. The rebels remained in the vicinity until Saturday morning, the 26th; they then left in the direction of Columbus. The gunboats fired one hundred rounds and had three men wounded.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—In the House, Stevens of Pennsylvania, offered a joint resolution proposing a new article for the Constitution, which when ratified by the requisite number of States shall be valid as a part of the Constitution, to wit: Slavery or involuntary servitude, except for punishment of crime whereof parties shall be first convicted, is forever prohibited in the United States and all the Territories; and so much of the article from section eleven of the Constitution as refers to delivering up of persons owing service or labor and escaping into another State, been annulled.

Holeman, of Indiana, objected to its second reading, the question recurring shall the resolution be rejected. This was determined in the negative by a vote of 39 to 66. Holman raised the point that the vote not being two-thirds as required, that the result in effect was a rejection of the question. The speaker overruled the objection. The resolution was then read a second time. Stevens then withdrew a part of the proposition annulling fugitive slave clause, but further proceedings were interrupted by Washburn by announcing the death of his colleague Owen Lovejoy.

CHICAGO, March 29.—The Senate yesterday debated the special order of the day, namely the joint resolution to amend the Constitution so as to forever prohibit slavery or involuntary servitude unless for crime. No action taken.

Wade, of Ohio, from the committee on public lands reported favorably on the House bill, enabling the people of Nebraska to form a State Government.

Foreign News.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Bremen from Liverpool via Southampton on the 16th has arrived.

Two hundred and fifty persons were drowned by the bursting of the Sheffield reservoir.

The London Times says there is good reason to believe, though the matter cannot be announced as absolutely certain, that the Conference will after all actually assemble.

In the House of Lords, Lord Campbell asked the meaning of Gortschakoff's words as to the combination between Russia, Prussia, Austria and England.

Lord Granville said, Gortschakoff could only refer to the conference proposal. England had not entered into any combination displaying the slightest hostile feeling towards France.

In the Commons, Robuck asked if the Federal and Confederate Governments had been remonstrated with for the employment of agents for illegal purposes. He said he would like to see the Federal stopping swept from the seas. England's honor was at stake.

Lord Palmerston said those governments had been remonstrated with and presentations instituted.

Bright said Robuck's speech was unworthy of a member of Parliament.

Confederate loan advanced 1d, closing at 48 and 50. Consols steady 90¼. The Memorial Diplomatique says, the treaty between Maximillian and Napoleon will be agreed on immediately on his becoming Emperor of Mexico. The treaty is intended to settle the question of the French occupation and arrange for the liquidation of the French claims. The French troops will be withdrawn gradually. When the new regimental lists are filled six thousand volunteers of the Foreign Legion are to remain in Mexico. The debt of France will be paid in 14 annual instalments of 25,000,000 francs each.

Maximillian was visiting Queen Victoria.

The Federals are said to have violated the Mexican territory, by seizing cotton belonging to the Confederacy at Matamoras.

La France says England and Russia are inducing Denmark to accept an armistice. The armies are to remain during the Conference in the same condition.

Five Danish steamships were cruising off Stralsmund, where the Prussian fleet was then bound.

The enemy had entered Arhus.

Swedish troops are ordered to march.

The bombardment of Duppel fortifications had commenced.

Prussia had occupied several places near Duppel.

An important engagement had occurred near Stralsmund.

SALEM, March 31.—The Marion County Democratic Convention met pursuant to call. After organizing they proceeded to the election of delegates to the State Convention, with the following results: John F. Miller, Jas. Cooper, Wm. H. Watkinds, Wm. Miller, N. T. Caton, A. J. Hundsaker, M. Murphy, C. Miller, Geo. Downing, Wm. Waldo, Dan'l. Clark. For County Sheriff: Daniel Clark: For County Treasurer: G. M. Stroud: For Assessor: Jas. Cooper: For Legislature: Jos. Tobe, Jacob Woodside, —— Jackson and ——Picard.

An affray occurred at Scio, Linn county, yesterday about noon, between Jos. Young and Charles Thomas, resulting in the death of Young. The difficulty originated from a law suit some three weeks ago in which Thomas was a witness, where young said he would not believe Thomas on oath. They had some words about it at the time, and met yesterday in a saloon, in Scio, when the difficulty was again renewed. Young's friends took him out of the saloon and he went over to John's storehouse. Thomas followed soon after, and going in, words passed between them when Thomas drew a knife and stabbed Young twice, killing him almost instantly. Thomas had his horse ready and as soon as he had committed the deed mounted and started off. Parties who have just arrived, state that Thomas has given himself up. Weather cool and cloudy.

Proceedings of the Union State Convention at Albany.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

The Convention, upon re-assembling this morning, nominated the following candidates for Presidential electors: Geo. L. Woods of Wasco, H. N. George of Linn and J. F. Gazley of Douglas. BOILS.
WE READ THAT ONE OF the sorest afflictions that the patient Job was called upon to bear was that of boils, and they have been found to be, from that time to the present, the most troublesome and painful of visitors. We have known [illegible] individuals were sure to have [illegible] eruptions break out upon them once a month or at least. They show an impure state of the blood, and that humor of some kind is festering there, and the overplus of corruption is actually forced to the surface of the body, making its appearance in the form of Boils. Now, it is not best at once to purify the system? Then you ask what will do this. We answer,
Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup.
It is curing humors in every [illegible] that is not a State in the Union [illegible] has not accomplished the most [illegible] and that

ARRIVAL OF THE PACIFIC.—The steamship Pacific, A. M. Burns Commander, arrived at 11 o'clock last night, from San Francisco, from which place she departed on Sunday, the 27th. She was detained some time off the Bar, by fogs. The time set for her to leave is to-morrow evening. The following is a list of her passengers:

John Waldomire, Eugene Howard, B DeWitt and wife, L B Fuller, J A Knox, S McBown, R Gillis, T Phebey, John Cameron, T A Wemel, W H Allen, Mrs Levy, B W Pyle, Lancaster, L M. Cohn, H W Corbett and 2 children, R Daly, F M Arnold, Arrigoni, wife child and servant, S S Kelly, S G Brown Bells and wife, J White, L M Schwabacker, A I Block, J Myer, Wm Baer, W A Cowlet, J Harris, N Werdheimer, Steele & Wife, Strauss, C McGettigan, wife and 2 children, P I Cassin, L Myer, S Elias, Jos Elfelt, J S Smith and Wife, T Marrion and wife P VanFaillandt and child, C Torver. Mr. Wilson (Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Messenger) and 190 others.

BEASTS AND BIRDS.—A cougar, or panther, measuring nine feet from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail, was killed near Lewis river a few days since, and brought to this city yesterday. It was in the act of tearing a hog to pieces for food, when it was seen and shot, by Mr. Gitchell. The ball entered the left eye and breaking the neck of the monster, passed out on the side below the left ear. Mr. S. S. Douglas, taxidermist, purchased the carcass, and the skin will be preserved in its natural form for a New York museum. Mr. Douglas was engaged yesterday in preparing a Vulture for the same museum, that was brought to him from Astoria. The scarcity of this rapacious bird in our section of country, render one a curiosity. With its strong beak, large nostrils and powerful talons, it appears entitled to its designation, while the head and long neck, without feathers, give it a hungry look. We should like to see this last specimen among some of our home collections. The Bald Eagle, at the rooms of the taxidermist, "fills the eye" in conception of a noble bird.

THE FIRST OF APRIL.—From a very early age this day has been considered as one set apart for the exercises of all kinds of mirthful folly and practical joking: the term given to it, All Fool's Day, is held as a travesty of the festival of All Saint's Day. The custom of playing off little tricks on this day appears to be universal throughout Europe. In France one thus imposed upon is called an April fish. In England, an April fool. In Scotland, a gowk. The Hindoos practice similar tricks on the 31st of March, when they have what is called the Huli festival.

DISTRESSING.—Consignees of freight in this city, per steamer Senator for the past month, were nearly all suddenly afflicted by Bites yesterday. In some cases the attack was very distressing, in others more moderate, but all were attended with a disposition to draw—purse strings. It is generally believed that the People's Transportation Company will be gainers by this spasmodic attack, and that the pleasant John D., by his affable manner, will cause all the sufferers to survive it.

RECORDER'S COURT.—John Coffee was taken before Recorder McCoy yesterday for riotous conduct, in presenting a pistol and threatening to shoot E. Horner. He was fined $25 and cost—the cost was paid and he gave collateral security for the fine. Soon after this transaction he was again arraigned for brutal treatment of his wife, assaulting and beating her, for which he received a fine of $50 and cost, and in default of payment was locked up for twenty days, to sober off.

DEATH TO RATS.—While workmen were taking up the side-walk on the corner of First and Washington streets yesterday, some ten or a dozen rats were "laid out" in rapid succession. One, in attempting to escape the horrors of a death from clubs and missles, took refuge in a Saloon and died! A moralist said: they should dig their holes deeper, and shun rats-bane.

TURN VEREIN.—The Turn Versin Association has become one of the fixed institutions of Portland, having for its object the development of the muscular system by gymnastic exercises, and a cultivation of the moral and social relations of man to man. They have a fine building on Second street, where the regular meetings of the Society are held—one of which is called for Sunday next.

SCHOOL EXERCISES.—The regular quarterly exercises at the Portland Academy and Female Society, will take place to-day. The school has prospered so finely during the past year that these exhibitions have become highly interesting, and are well attended by persons who feel an interest in the wel

Mr. Willson (Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Messenger) and 100 others.

BEASTS AND BIRDS.—A cougar, or panther, measuring nine feet from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail, was killed near Lewis river a few days since, and brought to this city yesterday. It was in the act of tearing a hog to pieces for food, when it was seen and shot, by Mr. Gitchell. The ball entered the left eye and breaking the neck of the monster, passed across the side below the left ear. Mr. S. S. Langles, taxidermist, purchased the carcass, and the skin will be preserved in its natural form for a New York museum. Mr. Douglas was engaged yesterday in preparing a Vulture for the same museum, that was brought to him from Lewis. It is generally believed that the People's Transportation Company will be pleased by this spasmodic attack, and that the agent, John D., by his affable manner, will soon all the sufferers to survive it.

JP's Court.—John Coffee was taken before Recorder McCoy yesterday for riotous conduct, in presenting a pistol and threatening to shoot, E. Horner. He was fined $25 and the cost was paid and he gave collateral security for the fine. Soon after this case he was again arraigned for brutal treatment of his wife, assaulting and beating her, for which he received a fine of $50 and cost. In default of payment was locked up for thirty days, to sober off.

A BIG KNOT.—While workmen were engaged on the side-walk on the corner of First and Washington streets yesterday, some ten or fifteen rats were "laid out" in rapid succession. One, in attempting to escape the sword of death from clubs and missiles, took refuge in a Saloon and died! A moralist says they should dig their holes deeper, and not rat-tan.

TURN VEREIN.—The Turn Verein Associa. tion is one of the fixed institutions of Portland, having for its object the development of the muscular system by gymnastic exercises and cultivation of the moral and social qualities of man to man. They have a fine building on Second street, where the regular meetings of the Society are held—one of which is called for Sunday next.

GYMNASTIC EXERCISES.—The regular quarterly exhibitions of the Portland Academy and Female Seminary, will take place to-day. The exercises proposed so finely during the past year, that these exhibitions have become highly interesting, and are well attended by persons who feel an interest in the welfare of the institution.

ACCIDENT.—Yesterday afternoon as a young man was riding on Front street, near the store of Mr. Law, his horse stepped into a hole and broke his leg; mercy to the poor beast required that he should be shot, and so he was led to the river bank—a victim to the bad ways of our streets. He belonged to Mr. Amos Eaton.

MRS. ZADA'S LECTURE.—A very select audience of ladies and gentlemen were in attendance at the Court House last evening, to listen to the lecture of Mrs. Sallie B. Thayer, which was delivered in every way creditable. The audience was delighted, and we understand Mrs. T. will be taken to have it repeated, if possible, to-morrow evening.

TAX TABLE.—Persons to whom the special tax is to be refunded, should call to-day or to-morrow for it, inasmuch as the Treasurer will soon be required to return the list to the Council early next week. Those who have not paid the special tax, will save cost by calling on the Collector this week, and getting their receipts.

THE MARIA.—The steamer Maria loses her shape as she is gradually raised out of the water. It was necessary yesterday to remove the pilot house, and "stack" in order to facilitate the work. The rapid rise of the river has a tendency to impede progress.

THE STEAMER ONWARD, Purser Church, on her trip up the Willamette, on Monday, carried the largest load of freight and passengers ever taken up the river. The delegations from all the lower counties were on board. She reached Albany, Tuesday morning.

THE RIVER has attained a height of eight feet above low-water mark, and is still rising.

BRAN, SHOR

John Randolph of Roanoke

I remember, years since, to have seen John Randolph in Baltimore. I had frequently read and heard descriptions of him, and one day, as I was sauntering in Market now Baltimore street I remarked a tall thin unique looking being hurrying toward me, with a quick impatient step evidently much annoyed by a crowd of boys who were flowing close at his heels not in the obstreperous mirth with which they would have followed a crazy or a drunken man, or an organ grinder and monkey, but in the silent curious wonder with which they would have haunted a Chinese beheaded in full costume I instantly knew the individual to be Randolph from the descriptions I therefore advanced toward him, that I might make a full observation of his person without violating the rules of courtesy in stopping to gaze at him As he approached he occasionally turned toward the boys with an angry glance, but without saying anything and then hurried on as if to outstrip them, but it would not do They followed close behind the orator, each one observing him so intently that he had nothing to his companions Just before I met him he stopped a Mr C , a cashier of one of the banks said to be as odd a fish as John himself I loitered into a store close by—and really he was the strangest looking being I ever beheld

His long, thin legs, about as thick as a stout walking cane, and of much such appearance were encased in a pair of tight small clothes so tight that they seemed part and parcel of the wearer Handsome white stockings were fastened with great tidiness at the knees with a small gold buckle, and over them coming about half way up the calf, were a pair of what I believe, are called hose, coarse and country knit He wore shoes They were old fashioned, and fastened also with buckles —huge ones. He trod like an Indian, without turning his toes out, but planking them down straight ahead It was the fashion in those days to wear a tan tailed coat with a small collar, and buttons far apart behind, and few on the breast Mr Randolph's was the reverse of all this Instead of being tan-tailed, it was what I believe, the knights of the needle call swallow-tailed; the collar was immensely large, the buttons behind were in kissing proximity, and they sat as close together on the breast of the garment as the feasters at a crowded public festival. His waist was remarkably slender; so slender that, as he stood with his arms akimbo he could easily, as I thought, with his long, bony fingers, have spanned it. Around him his coat, which was very tight, was held together by one button and in consequence, an inch or more of tape, to which the button was attached, was perceptible where it was pulled through the cloth About his neck he wore a large white cravat, in which his chin was occasionally buried as he moved his head in conversation no shirt collar was perceptible, every other person seemed to pride himself upon the size of his, as they were then worn large Mr Randolph's complexion was precisely that of a mummy—withered, saffron, dry and bloodless, you could not have placed a pin's point upon his face where you would not have touched a wrinkle His lips were thin, compressed and colorless the chin, beardless as a boy's, was broad for the size of his face which was small his nose was straight, with nothing remarkable in it except perhaps it was too short He wore a fur cap which he took off standing a few moments uncovered

I observed that his head was quite small, a characteristic which is said to have marked many men of talent Byron, Walter Scott, and Chief Justice Marshall, for instance Judge Burnet of Cincinnati, who has been alike distinguished at the bar, on the bench, and in the United States Senate, has also a very small head

Mr. Randolph's hair was remarkably fine—fine as an infant's, and thin It was very long and was parted with great care on the top of his head, and was tied with a bit of black ribbon about three inches from his neck, the whole of it formed a queue not thicker than the little finger of a delicate girl. His forehead was low with no bumpology about it, but his eye though sunken, was most brilliant and startling in its glance It was not an eye of profound, but of passionate thought, with an expression at times such as physicians ascribe to insanity, but an insanity which seemed to quicken, not destroy intellectual acuteness I never beheld an eye that struck me more It possessed a species of fascination, such as would make you wonder over the character of its possessor, without finding any clew in your wonderment to discover it, except that he was passionate, wayward and fearless He lifted his long bony finger impressively as he conversed, and gesticulated with it in a peculiar manner His whole appearance struck me, and I could easily imagine how with his great command of language, so appropriate and full so brilliant and classical, joined to the vast information that his discursive oratory enabled him to exhibit in its fullest extent from the storehouse of which, the vividness of his imagination was always pointing out a happy analogy or bitter sarcasm that startled more from the fact, that his hearers did not perceive it until the look, tone and finger brought it down with the suddenness of lightning—and with its effects, upon the head of his adversary taking all this into consideration I could easily imagine how, when almost a boy, he won so much fame, and preserved it so long, and with so vast an influence notwithstanding the eccentricity and inconsistency of his life, public and private

By the by the sudden, unexpected and aphoristical way in which Randolph often expressed his sentiments, had much to do with his oratorical success He would, like Dean Swift, make a remark seemingly a compliment, and explain it into a sarcasm, or he would utter an apparent sarcasm and turn it into a compliment Many speakers, when they have said a thing hurry on to a full explanation fearful that the hearer may not understand them, but when Randolph expressed one of these startling thoughts, he left the hearer for some time puzzling in doubt as to what he meant and, when it pleased him, in the coolest manner in the world he explained his meaning, not a little delighted if he discovered that his audience were wondering the while upon whom the blow would descend, or what principle the remark would be brought to illustrate A little anecdote which I heard a Member of Congress from Kentucky tell of him, shows this characteristic The Congressman, on his first visit to Washington he had just been elected) was of course desirous of seeing the hons Randolph, though not a member of either House, was there and had himself daily borne into the Senate or House by his faithful Juba to listen to the debates Everybody noted or annoted, were calling upon the eccentric orator, and the Member from Kentucky determined to do likewise and gratify his curiosity A friend General promised to present him, saying though You must be prepared for an odd reception, for if Randolph is in a bad humor he will do and say anything if he is in a good humor you will see a most finished gentleman" They called Mr Randolph was streched out upon a sofa He seemed," said the member a skeleton endowed with those flashing eyes which ghost stories give to the reanimated body when sent upon some earthly mission"

The Congressman was presented by his friend, the General, as a Member of Congress from Kentucky "Ah! from Kentucky, sir" exclaimed Randolph in his shrill voice as he rose to receive him, "from Kentucky sir well sir I consider your State the Botany Bay of Virginia" The Kentuckian thought the next remark would be a quotation from Barrington's Botany Bay Prologue applied by Randolph to the Virginia settlers of Kentucky

True patriots we for by it unprotected
We left our country for our country's good

but Randolph, after a pause continued I do not make this remark sir in application to the morals or the mode of settlement in Kentucky No sir I mean to say that it is my opinion, sir that the time approaches when Botany Bay will in all respects surpass England and I fear it will soon be so with your State and mine"

I cite this little anecdote not from any peculiar path that it possesses but in illustration of his character and in proof of the remark above made

If Mr Randolph had lived in ancient times Plutarch with all his powers in tracing the analogies of character would have failed in vain for his parallel And a modern biographer with all ancient and modern times before him will find the effort fruitless that seeks his fellow At first the reader might think of Dionesse as furnishing some resemblance to him and that all that Randolph wanted was a tub, but not so

If another Alexander had asked him what he would have that imperial power could be below—the answer never would have been to request to stand out of his sunlight No Randolph, if he could not have got any higher emolument and honor, would immediately have requested to be sent upon a foreign mission, that lover of Alexander had nothing more to get, and was so situated as not to be feared, who does not believe that the examinister would turn tail on him?

The fuchsia that Randolph was excessively ambitious, a cormorant alike for praise and plunder, and though his patriotism could point out the disinterested course to others his love of money would not let him keep the track himself—at least in his later years when Mammon, the old man's God beset him and he turned an idolator to that he had so often expressed his detestation that his country men believed him His mission to Russia broke the charm, that the prevailing opinion of his disinterestedness cast about him and his influence in his native State was falling fast beneath the appointment and outfit and salary that had disenchanted it, when he died, and now old Virginia will forget and forgive the inconsistencies of one of her greatest sons to do reverence to his memory.

Randolph's Republicanism was never heartfelt he was at heart an aristocrat He should have been born in England, a noble—there he would have stubbornly resisted the encroachments of all below him upon his own prerogatives station, dignity and quality, of all above him to a little below his level or at least upon an equality with his Randolph would have lifted Wilkes up to be a thorn in the side of a king whom he disliked, and to overthrow his minister; had he been himself a minister his loyalty would have then pronounced Wilkes an unprincipled demagogue Wilkes we know, when he got in office said he could prove to his majesty that he himself had not been a Wilkite.

Randolph was intensely selfish, and his early success as a politician and orator impressed him with an exaggerated opinion of his own importance at an early age, when such opinions are easily made and not easily eradicated In the case of Randolph, this overweening self-estimation grew monstrous. 'Big man, me John" and the bigness or littleness of others' services were valued and proclaimed just as they elevated or depressed the interests and personal dignity of the orator of Roanoke And often, when his interests had nothing to do with the question presented to him, his caprice would sway his judgment—for his personal resentments led him far away from every consideration, save that of how he could best wound his adversary

His blow wanted neither vigor or venom, his weapons were poisoned with such consummate skill; and he so well knew the vulnerable point of every character, that often when the wound, by an observer who knew nothing of his opponent, seemed slight it was raking the heart Randolph was well acquainted with the private history of the eminent men of his time the pecadilloes, frailties, indiscretions, weaknesses, vanities, and vices of them all He used his tongue as a jockey would his whip, hit the sore place till the blood came and there was no crack or flourish, or noise in doing it It was done with a celerity and dexterity which showed the practiced hand and its unexpectedness as well as severity, often dumbfounded the victim so completely that he had not one word to say but withdrew in silence

I remember hearing two anecdotes of Randolph, which strikingly type his character One exhibits his cynical rudeness and disregard for the feelings of others—in fact a wish to wound their feelings—and the other his wit I do not vouch for their accuracy but I have frequently heard them, as perhaps has the reader

Once, when Randolph was in the city of B he was in the daily habit of frequenting the bookstore of one of the largest booksellers in the place He had made some purchases from him, and was very curious in looking over his books &c In the course of Randolph's visits he became very familiar with Mr the bookseller and they held long chats together the orator of Roanoke showed off with great courtesy Mr was quite a pompous man, rather vain of his acquaintance with the hons who used to stop in his shop Subsequently, being in Washington with a friend he espied Randolph advancing toward him and told his friend that he would introduce him to the great man His friend however knowing the wayward of Randolph declined

"W " said Mr "I'm sorry that you will not be introduced I'll go up and give him a shake of the hand at any rate On he walked with outstreached hand to salute the cynic The aristocratic Republican (by the bye how often your thoroughgoing Republican is a full blooded aristocrat in his private relations) immediately threw his hands behind him as he could not dull his pun in that way and gazed searchingly into the face of the astonished bookseller "Oh oh" said he, as if recollecting himself "you are Mr B from Baltimore" "Yes sir" was the reply "A bookseller?" "Yes sir" again "Ah I bought books from you" "Yes sir you did Did I forget to pay you for them"

No sir, you did not" Good morning sir said the orator lifting his cap with a defended dignity, and passing on The anecdote does not show either Randolph's goodness of head or heart but it shows his character

The other anecdote is as follows The Hon ornible Peter who was a watch maker and who represented B county for many years in Congress once made a motion to amend a resolution offered by Randolph on the subject of military claims Mr Randolph rose up after the amendment had been offered and drawing out his watch from his fob asked the Honorable Peter what o'clock it was" He told him "Sir" replied the orator you can mend my watch but not my motions You understand watches, sir but not tactics

That, too was a fine retort when after he had been speaking several members rose in succession and attacked him "Sir I will go to the Speaker him in the condition of the Lear—
